

The Magic of Member Rewards

GET THE FACTS

Why Reward?

Current Members are More Profitable

The cost to acquire a new customer is 5 to 10 times that of retaining an existing one, and the average repeat customer spends about 67 percent more. (Inc.com)

A Lot More Profitable

A 5 percent increase in customer retention can lead to a 25 to 100 percent increase in profit. (Fred Reichheld, author of The Loyalty Effect)

Especially When Rewarded

Fifty-four percent of those surveyed by ClickFox would spend more with a brand for a loyalty reward, and 46 percent said they already have.

Getting Started:

What to Ask a Potential Provider

How many in-store merchants are in your rewards program?

Can I add my own custom local merchants?

Will your mobile app integrate with my banking app via SSO?

Do you have a self-service campaign management tool for marketing?

Engaging Members:

The Do's and Don'ts

Do	Don't
✓ Keep your program simple, based on one "currency," such as points.	✗ Confuse members with a complicated redemption structure.
✓ Make rewards part of a larger loyalty strategy.	✗ Expect rewards to make up for member service issues.
✓ Include local merchants. Your members shop there.	✗ Miss this opportunity to leverage your local cachet.
✓ Designate someone within the credit union to "own" loyalty.	✗ Leave members without a rewards point person to call.
✓ Make it fun for members with games and contests.	✗ Be afraid to go social—Reward Likes, Tweets, Pins, Posts, Shares and Comments.
✓ Market rewards at every member touch point.	✗ Forget to talk about rewards in the branch. They are a great conversation starter—your members want to hear about them.

Bottom Line:

Why Rewards Work

"Today's consumer values, redeems—and expects—rewards. In fact, few marketing initiatives deliver short- and long-term ROI like an effective loyalty strategy."

– Andrew Gates, CEO of Azigo, Inc., and Member Rewards by CO-OP consultant for CO-OP Financial Services
